

An alternative if you can't be there!

Introducing...

"Real time video conferencing with the ones you love"

from

Today many families live and work great distances from their loved ones, making it very difficult in deciding when and if they can travel to see someone who has been diagnosed with a terminal illness. Because of financial hardships, work commitments, and family conflicts, many feel conflicted and saddened if they are unable to be there during this emotional time.

Because we appreciate how valuable it is to make a connection, Face2Face Technologies has developed a simple, low cost, and unique video conferencing service available to families of Hospice patients around the country. You can have meaningful and confidential video conversations with multiple family members and loved ones. Grandparents are able to see their children and grandchildren when travel just isn't possible for the whole family.

Face to Face allows you to:

- Reach out to your loved ones when you and your family members are unavailable to travel.
- Watch your loved ones' faces light up during conversations with you and other family.
- Participate in a video conference even if you do not have access to the latest technology.

We provide everything to make the conversation easy and non-technical. Our specially configured laptop computers, complete with an independent broadband Internet connection, are designed to make the most of this personal video experience. Everything comes in one complete package. In addition to the technical know-how, we provide compassionate, individualized support to ensure that you and your family have the experience you deserve.

Consider Face2Face today. Your loved ones will cherish the moment.
